Abundant Hot Spring

is a rare type of hot spring in the world that contains oils, and its unique fragrance is one of its characteristics. It is primarily composed of catechins, which are believed to have beauty and antibacterial effects on the skin. One of its most significant features is the high heat-retaining properties of its oils, and the tar components are thought to have anti-inflammatory properties.

This mildly alkaline and highly viscous hot spring is gentle on the skin, and its components easily penetrate the body. In addition, the municipal hot spring facility "ふれあいセンター" is recognized as a hot spring-based health promotion facility, and many people from all over Japan, regardless of age or gender, frequently visit for hot spring therapy. Some even consider relocating there to seek relief from various ailments.
